“ I received a call yesterday from a high school friend that reminded me a trip we took many years ago with Mom and Dad. It had a trip to Six Flags over Georgia, a drive through the mountains and his most vivid memory was fishing with me and my father. He remembered the walk through the river swamp not knowing why and then understanding once we came upon one of the most pristine fishing holes ever known to him (I saw it two or three times a week). He remembered catching bluegills and red bellies as fast as he could get the line in the water. To my recollection he caught a few limbs as well. So to my family members immediate and extended remember him as he lived, not while he was sick. I think today I am going to ease off to the river swamp and visit that old fishing hole.
